Qualified Disaster Recovery Distributions

Effective for disasters occurring on or after July 27, 2026, if you are a qualified individual (as defined below), you may take a qualified declared disaster withdrawal while you are still employed. For this purpose, you are a qualified individual if:

- Your principal residence at any time during the incident period of any qualified disaster is in the qualified disaster area with respect to that disaster, and
- You have sustained an economic loss by reason of that qualified disaster.

For this purpose, a qualified disaster is one for which a major disaster has been declared by the President, as announced by Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). You can search the FEMA disaster declaration search tool, filtering for declaration type: Major Disaster Declaration, to determine if a specific disaster qualifies. The incident period for a qualified disaster is the period specified by FEMA as the period during which the disaster occurred.

Examples of an economic loss include, but are not limited to:

- Loss, damage to, or destruction of real or personal property from fire, flooding, looting, vandalism, theft, wind, or other cause,
- Loss related to displacement from your home, or
- Loss of livelihood due to temporary or permanent layoffs.

The maximum amount of a qualified declared disaster withdrawal is the lesser of (1) $22,000, or (2) your vested account(s) in the Plan.

To receive a qualified declared disaster withdrawal, you must certify that you are eligible under the terms of the Plan. In addition, the withdrawal must be made within 180 days after the later of (1) the first day of the incident period for the qualified disaster, or (2) the date of the disaster declaration of the qualified disaster.

At any time within the three-year period beginning on the day after you receive your withdrawal, you may elect to repay any portion of the qualified declared disaster withdrawal to your account(s) in the Plan.

A qualified declared disaster withdrawal is includible in taxable gross income in equal amounts over a three-year period, starting with the year in which the withdrawal is received, unless you make an election on Form 8915-F to include the entire withdrawal in income in the year in which you receive it. A qualified declared disaster withdrawal is exempt from the additional 10% penalty tax that generally applies to early withdrawals.
